Rebecca Sheehan Joins Renaissance Covington Board

January 13, 2021 - Covington, KY – Renaissance Covington has added DBL Law attorney Rebecca Sheehan to its Board of Directors. The nonprofit organization is dedicated to amplifying the vibrancy of downtown Covington’s evolving community through public engagement and business support. As a Main Street Organization, Renaissance Covington utilizes the four-point approach of organization, economic vitality, promotion, and design to create transformational strategies in areas such as community events, arts and culture, business development and innovation, and transforming public spaces.

Rebecca is an attorney in DBL Law’s Health Care and Employment and Labor groups. She joined the firm in 2017.

Rebecca earned her Juris Doctor in 2018 from the Salmon P. Chase College of Law at Northern Kentucky University, and her Bachelor of Arts in English from University of Louisville in 2011. She has previously worked as a Senior Editor for the Northern Kentucky Law Review, an Extern with the Kentucky Supreme Court, and a Law Clerk at Legal Aid of the Bluegrass.

Prior to law school, Rebecca lived and worked abroad in New Zealand. She is a Covington native, having grown up in West Covington and currently residing in Latonia.

DBL Law is a full-service law firm representing businesses, nonprofit organizations, and individuals. The firm has over 50 attorneys and offices in Cincinnati, Louisville, and Northern Kentucky. For more information, visit www.dblaw.com.
